

Exit Perigee

Unchanging paths of worlds unknown just out of our control
The cycle of creation ellipses angle to the pole
Begin the slower journey as we exit perigee
Engaged in trips that we can't change, it is our destiny

Like spokes upon the wheels when spinning, shadows can't be seen
But strobe reveals a secret, shows the places where we've been
The flicker of a dying star, a nova 'bout to blow
Light bending 'round when it's all gone, a vision hard to show

But in between the time it's born until its golden age
The planets play the melody. Quiet forces set the stage
The commotion never stops as inertia carries the tune
What starts it all in motion, a collision from a moon?

So when it all is over and the gravity's too strong
The planets join the star and start to play a different song
For in our time of orbit whether planet or a moon
We all will reach an apex. Some will later, some too soon

It all can seem so close at times and yet so far away
The planets move around their stars, no place for them to stay
But it is meant to be that way, someday we all may see
That part of God's creation, as we exit perigee

DK 1999

Copyright David A. King 5/18/99